1910 CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN CHARLEROI

Lutheran Synod Accepts Invitation of Rev. Frantz to Meet Here.

MINISTERS ARE NEEDED

Important Matter Taken Up Yesterday at Session in Butler.

The 1910 convention of the Pittsburgh Synod, Evangelical Lutheran church, will be held in Charleroi as anticipated, by local people. This decision was reached at the convention yesterday in Butler, after an invitation had been extended by Rev. Charles E. Frantz of Christ Lutheran church, Charleroi. Rev. Frantz has been working for the convention since last year, and had many good friends in the synod, also working for him. It was thought by his combined effort that he was able to secure the synodical meeting for Charleroi.

The convention will be held next October, and will be the means of bringing a large number of people here for several days. In the Pittsburgh synod there are about 150 ministers, and a large number of laymen.

One important matter will probably receive much consideration next year is the matter of the lack of ministers for this synod. This was discussed at the convention in Butler yesterday, but it was impossible to take much action. There were none seeking for ordination yesterday at the convention. It was decided to license ministers hereafter.

A LARGE GIRL AND THAT'S NO UNTRUTH

Champion Big Woman of World Arrives in Charleroi—Has to Enter Doors Sideways.

Gerda is here. She arrived this morning on the 9:05 train from Uniontown, and now will visit Charleroi for a few days. She excited interest from the first, when she was maneuvered to alight from the train. She had to slide sideways to get out of the door of the car and when she attempted to enter the ladies waiting room of the local station had again to get there in a different manner from that taken by most people. All this is lead-up to the announcement that Gerda May Davis, the largest woman, a girl, rather, in the world struck this morning, and is now at a three room in the Clement building on the corner of McKean avenue and Fourth street, where any person may see her for the nominal sum of 10 cents. With Miss Davis is her father and manager, J. D. Dulaney. While but 17 years of age Gerda weighs 625 pounds, there being no doubt of this, by any person who has seen her.

Dam Almost Completed.

Dam No. 5, at Brownsville, which has been practically rebuilt, will be completed before the new year, providing no bad weather sets in.

State's Revenue Increased.

The State's revenue for the fiscal year to date passed the mark of $25,000,000—last year's total—Monday. The present fiscal year has a month and a half to run.

Decree Changing Name of Hospital

Monessen-Charleroi Hospital Now in Official Circles.

A decree has been filed in the Washington county courts authorizing the changing of the name of the Monessen General Hospital to the Monessen-Charleroi Hospital. The matter was presented some time ago, it being considered that Charleroi, having a share in the hospital, and it being located at North Charleroi, the name of Monessen-Charleroi Hospital would be more appropriate.

IMPOSING ON DAIRYMEN?

Dairy Paper Thinks There is Too Much for Them to Contend With.

The following from the National Stockman and Farmer has been handed the Mail for publication:

"I see in the press dispatches that the health officials of Chicago conclude that pasteurization of milk is ineffective and useless if not dangerous and they have repealed the ordinance requiring pasteurization. Several towns to my knowledge tried to compel all dairymen to pasteurize the milk sent for sale and now they discourage pasteurization. If some of our health officials would be compelled to foot the bills incurred by carrying out their half-baked ordinances we would be worried by less of them. In some towns dairymen find it hard to keep track of all the regulations and I seriously doubt if the officials always know where they are at."

A few simple elastic regulations co-operatively enforced insure a good milk supply. The great majority of dairymen are as anxious to serve good wholesome milk as the consumers are to have it, and the sooner the so-called health authorities learn this fact the better for all parties concerned.

Was a Special Feature of the Christian Centennial—65 Members of the Class Take Part.

The Anchor Class of the First Christian church, Charleroi, was represented by 65 members at the demonstration of practical class work at the Christian Centennial at Pittsburgh last night. The demonstration was given at the Bellfield Presbyterian church and was witnessed by a large crowd. The work of the class was much appreciated and many compliments were received by Mrs. H. C. Boblitt, the teacher and various members.

Arrangements are being made for a Centennial Echo meeting at the Christian church here on Wednesday evening. The purpose of the meeting will be to bring to the people of Charleroi the spirit and uplift of the Centennial.

UNKNOWN MAN KILLED LAST EVENING BY A FAST EXPRESS TRAIN

Body Taken to Monongahela Where it Now Awaits Identification.

An unknown man was killed by the north-bound express due here at 4:39 o'clock last evening, between Allentown and Dunlevy. The man was taken to Monongahela to Bebout's undertaking rooms.

The train was running fast and the man was hit a terrible blow, so that the body was carried for thirty feet or more. The engineer started to whistle soon after he left Allentown, but did not see the man on the track in time to stop the train. There was nothing on the man's clothing to indicate who he was, or where his home was. He was of stout build, had a smooth face and red hair. It is impossible to judge whether or not he was a foreigner.

AT BANQUET OF THE PITTSBURGH BALL TEAM

Congressman Tener Attends Social Affair, then Goes to Washington.

Among those at the banquet of the Pittsburgh Baseball club at Pittsburgh last night was Congressman J. K. Tener of Charleroi. In a picture published in the Dispatch this morning of the group at the banquet Mr. Tener's likeness is shown, sitting near Barney Dreyfus, the president of the Pittsburgh club.

Congressman Tener left on the 11 o'clock train last night for Washington, D. C., on official business.

A birthday surprise party was tendered Miss Ruth Murphy at the home of her parents on Fallowfield avenue last evening. There were about 40 present, and the time was most enjoyable spent with games and music. Miss Ruth was presented with a beautiful garnet ring by her friends. The affair was in honor of her 16th birthday.

Yesterday afternoon a Vesta man, who came to town for a celebration, became disorderly and he was taken in tow by Officer George McElowney. The man was anxious to fight, but was prevented by the timely arrival of the police. He was fined $2.25 at a hearing last evening.

TURN IN ALARMS THEN ALLOW PERSPIRING FIREMEN CHASE AROUND BLOCKS TRYING TO LOCATE FIRE

Should Leave Someone at Box to Instruct Fire Fighters Where the Conflagration Really Is.

The attention of the Mail was called to an article in the Washington Record this morning, regarding a hunt for a fire in that place last evening by the firemen. An alarm was turned in there for a fire and the firemen promptly responded. They went to the alarm box but there was no one there knew anything about the fire. Finally after an extended search it was learned that the fire had been in a hotel, and that it had been extinguished some time before.

The Charleroi firemen had a similar experience some time ago. A woman was scared by smoke in the basement of her house, rushed to an alarm box, rang the alarm, and then rushed back to her home. She put out the fire without so much as telling people where it was. Uncomplimentary things were afterward said by her about the fire department. The firemen could not locate the fire, of course.

It has been stated that it would be a good plan for any one turning in an alarm to either wait at the box until the arrival of the firemen, or else notify some one of the location of the fire.

WOODEN BARGES BEING DISPLACED BY STEEL ONES

American Steel and Wire Company Orders Ten New Ones for Local Trade.

The American Steel and Wire company has awarded to the American Bridge company of Ambridge contracts for building ten steel barges for transportation, representing an outlay of approximately $50,000. When these have been delivered the American Steel and Wire company will have a fleet of 30 steel barges, which are coming into use by large corporations and the fleet will present an outlay of $150,000.

These orders will be placed as the barges are required and as rapidly as the wooden barges gave out steel ones will replace them. They are used in transporting coal, billets and other material to their several plants at local harbors and pools. They are also used in the Schuylkill plant, Pittsburgh.

CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Estenfelder Receive Many Beautiful Presents.

The 25th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Estenfelder, was celebrated last evening, at their home on Meadow avenue and Sixth street. There were a large number of guests present, and the evening was spent enjoyably with various social diversions. The couple received many beautiful and useful presents. Out-of-town guests were present from Monongahela and Monessen.

Mr. Estenfelder is an agent of the Prudential Insurance company, having held that position here for some time. He has for many years been a resident of Charleroi and is well known hereabouts.

FINES FOR JURY-FIXERS

James L. Smith and George Worley Must Each Pay $1,000 and Costs.

In Pittsburgh yesterday, at the opening of the United States District court the case was taken up against John Erhard, James L. Smith and George W. Worley, indicted for conspiracy to obstruct justice in attempting to "fix" a jury in the proceedings against J. B. F. Rinehart, now serving a term in the penitentiary for helping to wreck the Farmers and Drivers National Bank of Waynesburg. The case was heard before Judge Erhard, who passed sentence on the indictment, and after a jury had been drawn to try the case the defendants entered pleas of nolo contendere. Judge Orr passed sentence at once, fining Erhard $25 and Smith and Worley each $1,000.

Erection of New Barn the Reason for Temporary Change.

TRACKS MUST BE RAISED

Necessary to Alter Course of Trolley Line on Lincoln Avenue.

Beginning at noon Wednesday, the Westside Street Railway company will not run their cars on the Pittsburgh Railways lines on McKean avenue in Charleroi until further notice. This is due to the change in the tracks that is being made on Lincoln avenue, at the northern extremity of the borough. At this place a new car barn is being erected, and it requires the taking up of the tracks where the cars now run, and laying them elsewhere.

The order for this change was issued this morning from the office of the superintendent of the company, D. G. Callihan at Belle Vernon, through the Charleroi office. Notices were posted of the change.

Work is progressing on the new car barn, under the direction of C. N. Bennett, chief engineer. When finished it will be the headquarters of the company and will mean the bringing of about 50 more men here. The cement walls have practically been completed.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

A Campaign Trick.

In view of the fact that a quiet attempt is being made to divert Republican votes from Robert von Moschizker, the candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court, to his Democratic opponent, Larue Munson, by the argument for a non-partisan judiciary, it can be positively stated that there is nothing to this argument. Without saying anything derogatory to the character or ability of Mr. Munson, it is a well known fact that his Republican opponent, Judge von Moschizker, is his superior in legal attainments and ability and his equal at least in personal character and integrity. On the grounds of a non-partisan judiciary on account of merit and ability there is a greater argument for Democrats to support Judge von Moschizker, than for Republicans to support Mr. Munson.

The son of a Polish patriot who revolted against Russia's despotic rule of Poland, and was forced to seek an asylum in the United States, Judge von Moschizker was born in this country. Architect of his own fortune, he has won a place high in the ranks of both bar and bench in this country. A jurist at forty, he is noted in the profession as a man of unquestioned integrity, wide learning and high legal attainments. It was these traits of character that advanced him so rapidly in his profession, and these alone which prompted his selection by his party as a candidate.

The non-partisan appeal is only a campaign trick. Judge von Moschizker is better qualified to discharge the duties of Supreme Judge than Mr. Munson, and his character and standing are every bit as commendable.

A Convention Town.

By inviting the Lutheran Synod of the State to hold its annual conference in Charleroi next year, Rev. C. E. Frontz, the local pastor, has performed a signal service for the town. Not only will the convention aid in the furtherance of church work and influence generally, but it will be a material benefit as well. A convention city or town is always known as a live town.

It will be noted that Pittsburg is reaching out for every convention, big or little, it can get hold of, and that the people there are noted for their hospitality. The great Christian Centennial, which closes today, is a notable example. It is estimated that at least 50,000 visitors were in Pittsburg continuously during the nine days the Centennial was in progress, and that at least 25,000 transients were attracted during the session. Does anyone believe that such a gathering in a city could not add to the local trade and business of the community? At the least calculation a million dollars will be left in the city because of this great church convention.

In a smaller way proportionately every church, Sunday school or fraternal convention will help Charleroi. Not only that, but hospitable treatment of delegates serves to advertise and boom the town. Ethically and morally the conventions are a help, as they are usually composed of representatives who stand for principle and right. The meeting of the Lutheran Synod here should command the attention of all when the time comes, and every possible effort should be put forth to make Charleroi a notable convention town.

Waterway Extension.

A prominent river coal man is authority for the statement after a personal investigation, that an undeveloped coal field in Southern Illinois will soon usurp the southern coal trade of Pennsylvania unless the Ohio river is improved so that coal from the Monongahela river can be shipped all the year around. This man further states that the Illinois coal vein is eleven feet in thickness, and contains even a greater amount of carbon than Monongahela river coal. More than that, it is only fifty miles from Cairo, the mouth of the Ohio, and can be transported more cheaply than coal from this section, and being practically on the Mississippi does not have low water in the Ohio to contend with. The only reason why this coal is not more fully developed is that the Monongahela coal was in the market first, with more capital and organization behind it.

This only goes to show the importance of the proposed Ohio improvements to the mining interests of this section. Without the southern markets coal mining would drop off here. It is well known in coal circles that inability to depend upon the supply from here by water is causing southern consumers to seek other markets, and this is resulting in extensive coal developments in Kentucky, Tennessee, and other southern States. With improved waterways this section could continue to hold this big trade which for lack of cheap transportation is rapidly slipping away from us.

Just think, if it hadn't been for bad weather, sickness, disagreements, cold feet, that tired feeling, homesickness and a few other things, we might have been seeing the champion Pittsburg ball team showing us how to use the horsehide up this way, today.

A parody on a gas engine in which was said all the mean things about the cursed instrument of torture that could be said without resorting to actual profanity, would strongly appeal to people who have bouts with it.

Altoona is to get the next State Sunday school convention. Next thing you know Charleroi will be coping it.

Automobiles are rather thick here now, but it's nothing to what it will be when those machines of that new garage get to sliding promiscuously around.

And now Monessen claims that it employs at least 200 Charleroi men. We are so glad. Just think, they wouldn't live in that place.

The only men that are ever truly modest are those whom others do not dare slander—are those who have gained a place before the public eye, such as members of the Pittsburg ball team have in the past week.

Let's see, was any one arrested yesterday for trying to kill President Taft?

In spite of the frequent declarations of men that a typewriter is a typewriter, we maintain that a typewriter is not always a typewriter. A typewriter is a typewriter, whereas a typewriter is a pretty girl, willing to get married. And then again a typewriter is not always a typewriter because she sometimes gets married.

EARLY CARICATURES.

Quaint Art and Humor of the Ancient Egyptians.

The fables of Aesop prove that the ancients were not without a liking for fun, and the remains of ancient art tell the same story. Examples of artistic humor are more common than is generally supposed.

A drawing on a tile in the New York museum represents a cat dressed as an Egyptian woman of fashion. She is seated languidly on a chair, sipping wine out of a small bowl and being fanned and offered dainties by an abject-looking toment with his tail between his legs.

The cat figures largely in the ancient comic groups of animal life. In a papyrus in the British museum a flock of geese are being driven by a cat and a herd of goats by two wolves with crooks and whistles. One of the wolves is playing a double pipe.

There is in Turin a papyrus roll that displays a whole series of such comical scenes. In the first place, a lion, a crocodile and an ape are giving a vocal and instrumental concert. Next comes an ass dressed, armed and accoutered like a pharaoh. With majestic swagger he receives the gifts presented to him by a cat of high degree, to which puffed acts as proud conductor. A lion and a gazelle are playing at draughts, a hippopotamus is perched in a tree, and a hawk has climbed into the tree and is trying to dislodge him.

Another picture shows a pharaoh in the shape of a rat drawn in a carriage by prancing greyhounds. He is proceeding to storm a fort garrisoned by cats having no arms, but teeth and claws, whereas the rats have battle-axes, shields and bows and arrows.—St. Louis Republic.

ARTILLERYMEN.

They Were Once Regarded as Mechanics, Not Soldiers.

Until the time of Charles XII. of Sweden the artillery was not considered a part of the army. The men serving in it were not soldiers, but regarded as mechanics. The officers had no army rank. Charles XII. gave artillery officers a rank and regularly organized the artillery into companies. The battle of Pavia demonstrated the superiority of the gun in the hands of the Spanish infantry. The musket carried a two ounce ball and sometimes brought down at one fire two or three mailed knights. The French sent a flag of truce to remonstrate against the use of such barbarous weapons.

Alexander had four kinds of cavalry—the cataphracts, or heavy armed horse; the light cavalry, carrying spears and very light armor; the acrobats, or mounted archers, used for outposts, patrols and reconnoitering duty; and the dimachos, or troops expected to act either as cavalry or infantry. Alexander the Great reorganized his father's army. The file or lachos of sixteen men was the unit; two files made a diloch; two diloches made a tetrach; two tetrachs a tetraloch; two of these a syntagma; sixteen of these a small phalanx; four of these a tetra-phalangarchy, otherwise known as a large phalanx.

The Greeks attacked in a phalanx the spears interlocked and shields overlapping. After the first onset the spears were dropped, and the day was decided with the sword. The cavalry attacked the enemy in the rear if possible and in case of victory undertook the pursuit.—Bryn Mawr Weekly.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

They Clog the Pores—Only a Liquid Can Reach the Inner Skin.

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and can not penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the only standard liquid eczema cure, oil of wintergreen as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription. After ten years of cure after cure, the world's leading skin specialists have accepted this as the true eczema cure.

We ourselves do not hesitate to recommend D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, but for the benefit of those who have never tried the prescription, we have arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special large trial bottle at 25 cents on a special offer now. This first bottle ought to convince every sufferer, and, at any rate, it will surely take away the itch at once.

RULE OF THE SEA.

Old Whaling Law Applied to a Twice Caught Cod.

That etiquette is observed among the fishermen that journey to the fishing banks was discovered by an amateur angler on his first trip.

The amateur hooked a codfish, but his line parted just as the fish was above the water. Back fell the codfish, carrying with him two sinkers and the hook.

Twenty minutes later another angler cried out that he had captured a cod with two sinkers and a hook. The amateur went up to the angler, who appeared to be an old salt, and asked for his hook and sinkers, which had his name stamped on them. He was surprised when the old salt told him to take the fish also.

According to the rules generally followed on the fishing boats, the second angler was entitled to the fish, but the hook and sinkers should be returned to their owner. The old angler explained why he wanted to give up the fish.

It seems that he had followed the sea a great part of his life. When a young man he was a whaler, and, according to whaling law, a dead whale belongs to the ship, whose name appears on the harpoon that killed it. Therefore the old salt figured that the amateur owned the codfish he had taken.—New York Sun.

Euler's Wonderful Memory.

Leonhard Euler, who was born in 1707 and died in 1783 at St. Petersburg, where he spent his life as a teacher of great power and as a prolific writer, was an instance of the genuine mathematician endowed with almost superhuman powers. He left more than 200 manuscript treatises on his favorite subject, and the bulk of the works published by his academy between 1727 and 1783 were from his pen. In his old age he was totally blind. Then he carried in his memory a table of the first six powers of the "series of natural numbers up to 100."

It is related that on one occasion two of Euler's students attempted to calculate a converging series. As they advanced they found they disagreed in the result by a unit in the fifteenth figure. The question was referred to Euler, who decided to make the calculation. He did this mentally, and his result was found to be correct.—New York Tribune.

The Codmoppe.

Serrings are still eaten as much as in the days when Yarmouth had to send a hundred yearly to the king, baked in four and twenty pasties. But where is the codmoppe gone, and what was it like when kings dined off it in Lent? "Codmoppe sauce Hollandaise" would sound most intriguing on a Savoy menu. More original still would be the "roasted perpes" of a Henry V. banquet, which was the "sea swine" of the unrefined Saxon, the "porco marino" of the mediaeval ecclesiast. A master coke gives an early receipt for "pudding of purpasse," another teaches how to "saute porpysse, and seel," another how to "undertrauche that purpos." From which it may be seen that enterprise extended also to the spelling of the porpoise.—London Chronicle.

The amateur went up to the angler, who appeared to be an old salt, and asked for his hook and sinkers, which had his name stamped on them. He was surprised when the old salt told him to take the fish also.

According to the rules generally followed on the fishing boats, the second angler was entitled to the fish, but the hook and sinkers should be returned to their owner. The old angler explained why he wanted to give up the fish.

It seems that he had followed the sea a great part of his life. When a young man he was a whaler, and, according to whaling law, a dead whale belongs to the ship, whose name appears on the harpoon that killed it. Therefore the old salt figured that the amateur owned the codfish he had taken.—New York Sun.

Euler's Wonderful Memory.

Leonhard Euler, who was born in 1707 and died in 1783 at St. Petersburg, where he spent his life as a teacher of great power and as a prolific writer, was an instance of the genuine mathematician endowed with almost superhuman powers. He left more than 200 manuscript treatises on his favorite subject, and the bulk of the works published by his academy between 1727 and 1783 were from his pen. In his old age he was totally blind. Then he carried in his memory a table of the first six powers of the "series of natural numbers up to 100."

It is related that on one occasion two of Euler's students attempted to calculate a converging series. As they advanced they found they disagreed in the result by a unit in the fifteenth figure. The question was referred to Euler, who decided to make the calculation. He did this mentally, and his result was found to be correct.—New York Tribune.

The Codmoppe.

Serrings are still eaten as much as in the days when Yarmouth had to send a hundred yearly to the king, baked in four and twenty pasties. But where is the codmoppe gone, and what was it like when kings dined off it in Lent? "Codmoppe sauce Hollandaise" would sound most intriguing on a Savoy menu. More original still would be the "roasted perpes" of a Henry V. banquet, which was the "sea swine" of the unrefined Saxon, the "porco marino" of the mediaeval ecclesiast. A master coke gives an early receipt for "pudding of purpasse," another teaches how to "saute porpysse, and seel," another how to "undertrauche that purpos." From which it may be seen that enterprise extended also to the spelling of the porpoise.—London Chronicle.

ADVICE TO WOMEN

A Message from a Famous Beauty Specialist to Women Lacking in Energy and Vitality.

Thousands of women vainly attempt to improve their complexions and to remove blackheads, crows' feet and other blemishes, through the use of cosmetics. This treatment fails because the trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They are suffering from impure and impoverished blood. This condition is in many cases due to a catarrhal condition of the whole system which finds its expression in sallow, muddy complexion, dark-circled eyes, general weakness of the system, and perhaps most plainly in the weeping of mucous membranes that is commonly called catarrh.

In fact this whole tendency is, properly speaking, Catarrh. Banish this catarrh, and the complexion will clear as if by magic, eyes will brighten, faces become rosy and shoulders erect. Perfect beauty goes only with perfect health and perfect health for women can only be obtained through one certain treatment—that which will cure catarrh.

Mme. Swift, New York, the famous beauty specialist known throughout the world and an accepted authority on all relating thereto, states that the one positive and permanent relief for catarrh is Rexall Mucu-Tone. Here is her letter:

"I can strongly endorse the claims made for Rexall Mucu-Tone as a cure for systematic catarrh. Its tonic effects are remarkable. It builds up the strength and restores vitality. If women who are tired and rundown, lacking in energy and vitality, will use Rexall Mucu-Tone, they will praise as I do its strengthening and healing qualities."

Rexall Mucu-Tone works through the blood, acting thus upon the mucous cells—the congestion and inflammation of which causes local catarrh. This remedy causes poison to be expelled from the system, and the blood is purified and revitalized. Thus the natural functions of the mucous cells are restored, and the membranes are cleansed and made strong. We know that Rexall Mucu-Tone does relieve catarrh. We positively guarantee to refund the money paid us for this remedy in every case where the user is dissatisfied. It is a builder of vigorous health and a creator of good complexions. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Mail orders filled. It may be obtained only at our store—The Rexall Store, Carroll's Drug Store.

OLD CADIZ.

Once Richer Than London, Its Chief Business Now is Salt.
Of Cadiz, De Amicis said, "It is best described by writing the word 'white' with a white pencil on blue paper."
Under the noonday sun, seen from the lofty Torre de Vigia, the mediaeval watchtower in the center of the city, its buildings are dazzling and almost encircled by the blue sea. A long, narrow isthmus like the stem of a pipe leads from San Fernando, on the mainland. Cadiz rests on the bowl of the pipe—yes, a pure white meerschaum without coloring, though 3,000 years old.

Americans may justly regard this now decadent place with compassion, because it grew to greatness by its commerce with the new world—while Spain ruled the Americas—and then fell away into decay on the loss of the western possessions.

It was great before Rome was founded. And as late as 1770 it was wealthier than London. Commerce has ever been its life. Today its chief business is the production of salt for export. This humble staple, evaporated in countless shallow lagoons in wide spreading marshes, still keeps Cadiz in touch with the new world, as most of the salt is shipped to South America.

The natives pronounce Cadiz with "z" silent and "a" very broad—"Ca-di." That has always been its name, with slight variations. Its Phoenician and Tyrian founders called it Gadir, a castle of fastness. The Romans called it Gades. The Arabs had it Kadis.—Detroit News-Tribune.

The Don's Opinion.

Fashion is as inexorable in men's as in women's dress. The undergraduate is perhaps the most telling example of this. It was so even a century ago, when Oxford led the way in adopting the new nankin breeches that were to supersede tight breeches and top boots. Just about that period a don of Trinity met an undergraduate arrayed in all the splendor of the new fashion. "Young man," said the don severely, "you will come to no good. You wear nankin trousers and keep a dog." The young man afterward became Dr. Sumner and bishop of Winchester.—London Chronicle.

FORMAL DOINGS WITH NO HOPE

So-Called Democratic Campaign in This State Is a Smile-Provoking Performance

SAME OLD INCONSISTENCIES

Penrose Day in Philadelphia Occasion For Wonderful Demonstrations. Both Labor and Capital Appreciative of Senator's Efforts in Their Behalf.

That what effort is being put forth in the present State campaign in the interest of the Democratic ticket is a mere formality without the backing of even the faintest hope for political success, was clearly demonstrated in the "opening rally" held at Pottsville a few nights since. Eliminating the word "Democratic" as much as possible, the meeting was termed an "Independent Republican Rally" with William H. Berry, a former State Treasurer, who managed somehow to be elected on the Democratic ticket, and Henry C. Niles, of York, one of those who bewail continually, as the stellar attractions. Mr. Niles, who once claimed to be a Republican, later on posed as a Lincolnite and then classified himself as an Independent Republican, spoke in behalf of the "entire Democratic ticket." Mr. Berry, by a peculiar self-contradiction, denounced what he had gone there to encourage—a bi-partisan movement—and appeared at his best when he cast a well-deserved slur upon chameleon politicians such as those who were his associate speakers on that occasion.

Mr. Berry's address was peculiarly humorous. He said in part: "It augurs well for the future of Pennsylvania politics that representatives of opposing political parties are found on the same platform urging the election of the same candidates for State offices." And then a moment later he said: "The practical certainty of Republican success has caused an unscrupulous horde of office and spoils seekers of every, but mostly of no political faith whatever, to gravitate to it, and of this material the Republican organization or machine is largely formed."

It has become apparent to those assembled that citizens' will and opinions "sugar well" for the future of Pennsylvania. If they speak to the Democratic ticket, but if by honest conviction they look to the Republican ticket they become part and parcel of an "unscrupulous horde" of every but mostly no political faith whatever. And thus the time-honored and fundamental Democratic principle of inconsistency was again brought clearly to the front.

Meanwhile the Republican State candidates, former State Senator J. A. Stober, of Lancaster, for State Treasurer, and State Senator A. E. Sisson, of Erie, for Auditor General, are receiving enthusiastic welcomes at every stop in their tour of the State, while the becoming and dignified attitude of Judge Robert von Mochizsker, the eminent Philadelphia jurist, who is a candidate for the Supreme bench, in refraining from the tactics employed by Munson, his opponent, has earned the respect of all decent voters.

Employees and employers paid wonderful tribute to Senator Penrose and members of the Republican State committee in Philadelphia on Saturday, October 16. It was known as "Penrose Day" and from 8:45 o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon Senator Penrose and his party were kept busy meeting the workmen in the plants of Ivins, Deltz & Magee, Brown, Aberle & Co., Brown Knitting company, the Philadelphia Tapestry mills, the Moss Rose Manufacturing company, Potwell Brothers, Stead & Miller, Joseph Bromley and the Thomas Wolstenholme & Sons company. These are among the largest manufacturing concerns in and about Philadelphia and the spectacle of thousands of workmen giving up their half holiday to meet and greet the great Republican leader and his State associates, was an eloquent endorsement of Republican policies by American labor. The big day receptions were held under the auspices of the Workmen's Protective Tariff League. In the evening of that day Senator Penrose and the Republican State leaders were tendered a banquet by the principal manufacturers of Philadelphia, this event rounding out a day in which capital and labor gave appreciative expression to the satisfaction they find in the equal protection and rights guaranteed under the Republican banner.

The time for the reconvening of Congress is close at hand and Republicans throughout this Commonwealth have been quick to recognize the necessity of giving to the State ticket that is to be voted next month as support that shall constitute a moral support to the Republicans in Congress who stood steadfast through all the tariff discussion, and thereby insure the speedy carrying out of President Taft's further legislative program. The fact that gubernatorial and congressional elections are to soon follow in this State lends further importance to this annually off-year campaign.

The Republicans of the Keystone State owe it to their party, not only in the State but in the Nation, as well, that a large vote be cast next month. In the framing of the new tariff act Pennsylvania's industries were well cared for and so were the interests of those who work in those industries. The casting of a large Republican vote next month will be in the nature of a vote of confidence and appreciation and will have a material effect in sustaining the revival of prosperity already here and which is certain to attain a flood tide proportion within the next two years if the people sustain the party leaders who are at the helm.

The Christian Idea.

Down through the life of character, the life of intellect and the life of the flesh the power of the Christian idea of the universe goes like the balm of Gilead.—Rev. George A. Gordon, Congregationalist, Boston.

Unsatisfied Life.

Mortality is the unsatisfied life. Behind every good deed there stands the majesty of the moral law which makes a man never satisfied with himself. Such morality is identical with the true religion.—Rev. Leslie E. Learned, Episcopalian, Pasadena, Cal.

Making a Touchdown.

Life is nothing more or less than a big football game. The more we can back the line and undergo the punishment of the game the more it will help us in making a successful touchdown. In a real football game there is one man who seldom has a chance to make a touchdown. It's the center. In life every man has a chance to make a touchdown.—Rev. David B. Matthews, Episcopalian, Brockton, Mass.

God as Man's Great Help.

Man's ship is useful only when it is filled and swept forward by God's trade winds; man's engine serves only when it is driven by God's lightnings; man's wheels turn around only when they are pounded upon by the river's currents; man's intellect needs the impact of God's truth; man, in order to do good work, must see the heavens open and Christ standing by the throne of God. This vision of the eternal God who can carry on his work makes the toiler equal to any task.—Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, Congregationalist, Brooklyn.

Most Fruitful Hours.

The pleasantest hours are not always the most profitable, and it is true indeed what is said in the Ninetieth Psalm—that our life's strength is labor and sorrow. There are many of the pleasantest hours which we might just as well forget and there are many among the dark hours which have left behind a lasting blessing. The most fruitful and valuable hours, those which give most impetus to the inner life, are, as a rule, not the pleasant hours of enjoyment and mirth, but the grave and serious hours, days of woe and nights of tears, times of struggle and privation, the memory of which one would not part with for any price.—Rev. Ernest A. Tappert, Lutheran, New York.

Doing Good.

Society is like the planetary system, which is composed of greater and lesser bodies, held together by reciprocal forces. The moon is the smallest body of our system, and yet what control she wields in the flow and ebb of the ocean tides! How much we would miss her monthly visits, when she sheds over the earth her pale and silvery light! She generously shares with us the effulgence she borrows from the great orb of day. And so, no matter how insignificant you may be, you can exert some beneficent power over the tide and flow of human passions and diffuse a calm and blessed influence on those that fall within your environment.—Cardinal James Gibbons, Roman Catholic, Baltimore.

Look Up.

The man who always looks down cannot aspire. There is a purpose in our noble aspirations. The unattained beckons us onward. To look up means to lift up. "It is not what man does which exalts him," says Browning, "but what man would do." Our standard will rise higher and higher as we go from strength to strength. Our longings stretch our destiny. We must look down at times to get a clear idea of life's details, but if we wish to see their proper relation to the great issues of life we must look up. If we simply look at our feet, how limited becomes our vision! By lifting up our eyes on high we see the vast arch that spans the heavens. It is then we see with Emerson "what majestic beauties daily wrap us in their bosom" or with Ruskin study "the mystery of distant mountain blue," hear with Tennyson the sea waves break upon "the cold gray stones" or stand entranced with Newton, until the stars rise.—Rev. J. W. Roberts, Congregationalist, New York.

Eskimo Graves of Stones.

To the Eskimo mind everything animate or inanimate possesses a soul. Thus, in their graves we found they invariably placed every cherished possession, that their spirits might serve the departed spirit in the same capacities in the life to come. There is little room for burial beneath the scanty earth in Labrador, even if the frost would permit. So the graves consist of upright stones, with long flat ones laid across. These not only serve to keep the wolves from the body, but wide chunks also afford the spirits free passage in and out.—Wilfred T. Grenfell in Century.

Uncle Sam's Human Hinges.

In other cities the doors of public buildings are set on springs and slap to and fro as the visitor wills, but in Washington it appears necessary to have a special man to open and close the doors—human hinges, as it were—no undignified banging of doors there. This custom has died out in other places, but there are many veteran negroes in Washington who have seen years of such service for the government. They have a stately way of performing this office, which gives a door an official and unofficial swing.—Joe Mitchell-Chapple in National Magazine.

Shrewd Girl.

1910 CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN CHARLEROI

Lutheran Synod Accepts Invitation of Rev. Frantz to Meet Here.

MINISTERS ARE NEEDED

Important Matter Taken Up Yesterday at Session in Butler.

The 1910 convention of the Pittsburgh Synod, Evangelical Lutheran church, will be held in Charleroi as anticipated, by local people. This decision was reached at the convention yesterday in Butler, after an invitation had been extended by Rev. Charles E. Frantz of Christ Lutheran church, Charleroi. Rev. Frantz has been working for the convention since last year, and had many good friends in the synod, also working for him. It was thought by his combined effort that he was able to secure the synodical meeting for Charleroi.

The convention will be held next October, and will be the means of bringing a large number of people here for several days. In the Pittsburgh synod there are about 150 ministers, and a large number of laymen.

One important matter will probably receive much consideration next year is the matter of the lack of ministers for this synod. This was discussed at the convention in Butler yesterday, but it was impossible to take much action. There were none seeking for ordination yesterday at the convention. It was decided to license ministers hereafter.

A LARGE GIRL, AND THAT'S NO UNTRUTH

Champion Big Woman of World Arrives in Charleroi—Has to Enter Doors Sideways.

Gerdia is here. She arrived this morning on the 9:35 train from Uniontown, and now will visit Charleroi for a few days. She excited interest from the first, when she was manoeuvring to slide sideways to get out of the door of the car and when she attempted to enter the ladies waiting room of the local station had again to get there in a different manner from that taken by most people. All this to lead up to the announcement that Gerdia May Davis, the largest woman, or girl, rather, in the world struck down this morning, and is now at a store room in the Clement building on the corner of McKean avenue and Fourth street, where any person may see her for the nominal sum of 10 cents. With Miss Davis is her father and manager, J. D. Dulaney. While out 17 years of age Gerdia weighs 625 pounds, there being no doubt of this, by any person who has seen her.

Monessen-Charleroi Hospital Now in Official Circles.

A decree has been filed in the Washington county courts authorizing the changing of the name of the Monessen General Hospital to the Monessen-Charleroi Hospital. The matter was presented some time ago, it being considered that Charleroi having a share in the hospital, and it being located at North Charleroi, the name of Monessen-Charleroi Hospital would be more appropriate.

IMPOSING ON DAIRYMEN?

Dairy Paper Thinks There is Too Much for Them to Contend With.

The following from the National Stockman and Farmer has been handed the Mail for publication:

"I see in the press dispatches that the health officials of Chicago conclude that pasteurization of milk is ineffective and useless if not dangerous and they have repealed the ordinance requiring pasteurization. Several towns to my knowledge tried to compel all dairymen to aerate all the milk sent for sale and now they discourage aeration. If some of our health officials would be compelled to foot the bills incurred by carrying out their half-baked ordinances we would be worried by less of them. In some towns dairymen find it hard to keep track of all the regulations and I seriously doubt if the officials always know 'where they are at.'"

A few simple elastic regulations co-operatively enforced insure a good milk supply. The great majority of dairymen are as anxious to serve good wholesome milk as the consumers are to have it, and the sooner the so-called health authorities learn this fact the better for all parties concerned.

UNKNOWN MAN KILLED LAST EVENING BY A FAST EXPRESS TRAIN

Body Taken to Monongahela Where it Now Awaits Identification.

An unknown man was killed by the north-bound express due here at 4:39 o'clock last evening, between Allentown and Dunlevy. The man was taken to Monongahela to Bebout's undertaking rooms.

The train was running fast and the man was hit a terrible blow, so that the body was carried for thirty feet or more. The engineer started to whistle soon after he left Allentown, but did not see the man on the track in time to stop the train. There was nothing on the man's clothing to indicate who he was, or where his home was. He was of stout build, had a smooth face and red hair. It is impossible to judge whether or not he was a foreigner.

Among those at the banquet of the Pittsburg Baseball club at Pittsburg last night was Congressman J. K. Tener of Charleroi. Congressman Tener left on the 11 o'clock train last night for Washington, D. C., on official business.

A birthday surprise party was tendered Miss Ruth Murphy at the home of her parents on Fallowfield avenue last evening. Yesterday afternoon a Vesta man, who came to town for a celebration, became disorderly and he was taken in tow by Officer George McEldowney. The man was anxious to fight, but was prevented by the timely arrival of the police. He was fined $2.85 at a hearing last evening.

TURN IN ALARMS THEN ALLOW PERSPIRING FIREMEN CHASE AROUND BLOCKS TRYING TO LOCATE FIRE

Should Leave Someone at Box to Instruct Fire Fighters Where the Conflagration Really is.

The attention of the Mail was called to an article in the Washington Record this morning, regarding a bunt for a fire in that place last evening by the firemen. An alarm was turned in there for a fire and the firemen promptly responded. They went to the alarm box but there was no one there knew anything about the fire. Finally after an extended search it was learned that the fire had been in a hotel, and that it had been extinguished some time before.

The Charleroi firemen had a similar experience some time ago. A woman

WOODEN BARGES BEING DISPLACED BY STEEL ONES

American Steel and Wire Company Orders Ten New Ones for Local Trade.

The American Steel and Wire company has awarded to the American Bridge company of Ambridge contracts for building ten steel barges for transportation, representing an outlay of approximately $50,000. When these have been delivered the American Steel and Wire company will have a fleet of 30 steel barges, which are coming into use by large corporations and the fleet will present an outlay of $155,000.

More orders will be placed as the craft are required and as rapidly as the wooden barges gave out steel ones will replace them. They are used in transporting coal, billets and other material to their several plants in the local harbors and pools. They include the Schoenberger plant, Pittsburg plants at Donora, Rankin and Braddock.

FINES FOR JURY-FIXERS

James L. Smith and George Worley Must Each Pay $1,000 and Costs.

In Pittsburg yesterday, at the opening of the United States District court the case was taken up against John Erchard, James L. Smith and George W. Worley, indicted for conspiracy to obstruct justice in attempting to "fix" a jury in the proceedings against J. B. F. Rinehart, now serving a term in the penitentiary for helping to wreck the Farmers and Drovers National Bank of Waynesburg. The case was heard before Judge Orr, who refused a motion to quash the indictment, and after a jury had been drawn to try the case the defendants entered pleas of nolo contendere. Judge Orr passed sentence at once fining Erchard $25 and Smith and Worley each $1,000.

Erection of New Barn the Reason for Temporary Change.

TRACKS MUST BE RAISED

Necessary to Alter Course of Trolley Line on Lincoln Avenue.

Beginning at noon Wednesday, the Westside Street Railway company will not run their cars on the Pittsburg Railways lines on McKean avenue in Charleroi until further notice. This is due to the change in the tracks that is being made on Lincoln avenue, at the northern extremity of the borough. At this place a new car barn is being erected, and it requires the taking up of the tracks where the cars now run, and laying them elsewhere.

The order for this change was issued this morning from the office of the superintendent of the company, D. G. Callahan at Belle Vernon, through the Charleroi office. Notices were posted of the change.

Work is progressing on the new car barn, under the direction of C. N. Bennett, chief engineer. When finished it will be the headquarters of the company and will mean the bringing of about 50 more men here. The cement walls have practically been completed.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

A Campaign Trick.

In view of the fact that a quiet attempt is being made to divert Republican votes from Robert von Moschizker, the candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court, to his Democratic opponent, Larue Munson, by the argument for a non-partisan judiciary, it can be positively stated that there is nothing to this argument. Without saying anything derogatory to the character or ability of Mr. Munson, it is a well known fact that his Republican opponent, Judge von Moschizker, is his superior in legal attainments and ability and his equal at least in personal character and integrity. On the grounds of a non-partisan judiciary on account of merit and ability there is a greater argument for Democrats to support Judge von Moschizker, than for Republicans to support Mr. Munson.

The son of a Polish patriot who revolted against Russia's despotic rule of Poland, and was forced to seek an asylum in the United States, Judge von Moschizker was born in this country. Architect of his own fortune, he has won a place high in the ranks of both bar and bench in this country. A jurist at forty, he is noted in the profession as a man of unquestioned integrity, wide learning and high legal attainments. It was these traits of character that advanced him so rapidly in his profession, and these alone which prompted his selection by his party as a candidate.

The non-partisan appeal is only a campaign trick. Judge von Moschizker is better qualified to discharge the duties of Supreme Judge than Mr. Munson, and his character and standing are every bit as commendable.

A Convention Town.

By inviting the Lutheran Synod of the State to hold its annual conference in Charleroi next year, Rev. C. E. Frontz, the local pastor, has performed a signal service for the town. Not only will the convention aid in the furtherance of church work and influence generally, but it will be a material benefit as well. A convention city or town is always known as a live town.

It will be noted that Pittsburg is reaching out for every convention, and it can get none of them, and that the people there are noted for their hospitality. The great Christian Centennial, which closes today, is a notable example. It is estimated that at least 50,000 visitors were in Pittsburg continuously during the nine days the Centennial was in progress, and that at least 25,000 transients were attracted during the session. Does any one believe that such a gathering in a city could not add to the local trade and business of the community? At the least calculation a million dollars will be left in the city because of this great church convention.

In a smaller way proportionately every church, Sunday school or fraternal convention will help Charleroi. Not only that, but hospitable treatment of delegates serves to advertise and boom the town. Ethically and morally the conventions are a help, as they are usually composed of representatives who stand for principle and right. The meeting of the Lutheran Synod here should command the attention of all when the time comes, and every possible effort should be put forth to make Charleroi a notable convention town.

Waterway Extension.

A prominent river coal man is authority for the statement after a personal investigation, that an undeveloped coal field in Southern Illinois will soon usurp the southern coal trade of Pennsylvania unless the Ohio river is improved so that coal from the Monongahela river can be shipped all the year around. This man further states that the Illinois coal vein is eleven feet in thickness, and contains even a greater amount of carbon than Monongahela river coal. More than that, it is only fifty miles from Cairo, the mouth of the Ohio, and can be transported more cheaply than coal from this section, and being practically on the Mississippi does not have low water in the Ohio to contend with. The only reason why this coal is not more fully developed is that the Monongahela coal was, in the market first, with more capital and organization behind it.

This only goes to show the importance of the proposed Ohio improvements to the mining interests of this section. Without the southern markets coal mining would drop off here. It is well known in coal circles that inability to depend upon the supply from here by water is causing southern consumers to seek other markets, and this is resulting in extensive coal developments in Kentucky, Tennessee, and other southern States. With improved waterways this section could continue to hold this big trade which for lack of cheap transportation is rapidly slipping away from us.

EARLY CARICATURES.

Quaint Art and Humor of the Ancient Egyptians.

The fables of Aesop prove that the ancients were not without a liking for fun, and the remains of ancient art tell the same story. Examples of artistic humor are more common than is generally supposed.

A drawing on a tile in the New York museum represents a cat dressed as an Egyptian woman of fashion. She is seated languidly on a chair, sipping wine out of a small bowl and being fanned and offered dainties by an abject-looking toment with his tail between his legs.

The cat figures largely in the ancient comic groups of animal life. In a papyrus in the British museum a flock of geese are being driven by a cat and a herd of goats by two wolves with crooks and wattle. One of the wolves is playing a double pipe.

There is in Turin a papyrus roll that displays a whole series of such comical scenes. In the first place, a lion, a crocodile and an ape are giving a vocal and instrumental concert. Next comes an ass dressed, armed and equipped like a pharaoh. With majestic swagger he receives the gifts presented to him by a cat of high degree, to which a bull acts as proud conductor. A lion and a gazelle are playing at draughts, a hippopotamus is perched on a tree, and a hawk has climbed into the tree and is trying to dislodge him.

Another picture shows a pharaoh in the shape of a rat drawn in a carriage by prancing griffons. He is proceeding to storm a fort garrisoned by cats having no arms, but teeth and claws, whereas the rats have battle-axes, shields and bows and arrows.—St. Louis Republic.

ARTILLERYMEN.

They Were Once Regarded as Mechanics, Not Soldiers.

Until the time of Charles XII. of Sweden the artillery was not considered a part of the army. The men serving in it were not soldiers, but regarded as mechanics. The officers had no army rank. Charles XII. gave artillery officers a rank and regularly organized the artillery into companies. The battle of Pavia demonstrated the superiority of the gun in the hands of the Spanish infantry. The musket carried a two ounce ball and sometimes brought down at one fire two or three mailed knights. The French sent a flag of truce to remonstrate against the use of such barbarous weapons.

Alexander had four kinds of cavalry—the cataphract, or heavy armed horse; the light cavalry, carrying spears and very light armor; the acrobatic, or mounted archers, used for outposts, patrols and reconnoitering duty; and the dimachoe, or troops expected to act either as cavalry or infantry. Alexander the Great reorganized his father's army. The file or lochos of sixteen men was the unit; two files made a diolochy; two diolochies made a tetraolochy; two tetraolochies a tetrachy; two of these a syntagma; sixteen of these a small phalanx; four of these a tetra-phalangarchy; otherwise known as a large phalanx.

The Greeks attacked in a phalanx the spears interlocked and shields overlapping. After the first onset the spears were dropped, and the day was decided with the sword. The cavalry attacked the enemy in the rear if possible and in case of victory undertook the pursuit.—Macaulay's History.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

They Clog the Pores—Only a Liquid Can Reach the Inner Skin.

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and can not penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the only standard liquid eczema cure, oil of wintergreen as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription. After ten years of cure after cure, the world's leading skin specialists have accepted this as the true eczema cure.

We ourselves do not hesitate to recommend D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, but for the benefit of those who have never tried the prescription, we are giving away a bottle of D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special large trial bottle at 25 cents on a special offer now. This first bottle ought to convince every sufferer, and at any rate, it will surely take away the itch at once.

RULE OF THE SEA.

Old Whaling Law Applied to a Twice Caught Cod.

That etiquette is observed among the fishermen that journey to the fishing banks was discovered by an amateur angler on his first trip. The angler hooked a codfish, but his line parted just as the fish was above the water. Back fell the codfish, carrying with him two sinkers and the hook.

Twenty minutes later another angler cried out that he had captured a cod with two sinkers and a hook. The amateur went up to the angler, who appeared to be an old salt, and asked for his hook and sinkers, which had his name stamped on them. He was surprised when the old salt told him to take the fish also.

According to the rules generally followed on the fishing boats, the second angler was entitled to the fish, but the hook and sinkers should be returned to their owner. The old angler explained why he wanted to give up the fish.

It seems that he had followed the sea a great part of his life. When a young man he was a whaler, and according to whaling law, a dead whale belongs to the ship whose name appears on the harpoon that killed it. Therefore the old salt figured that the amateur owned the codfish he had taken.—New York Sun.

Euler's Wonderful Memory.

Leonhard Euler, who was born in 1707 and died in 1783 at St. Petersburg, where he spent his life as a teacher of great power and as a prolific writer, was an instance of the genuine mathematician endowed with almost superhuman powers. He left more than 200 manuscript treatises on his favorite subject, and the bulk of the works published by his academy between 1727 and 1783 were from his pen. In his old age he was totally blind. Then he carried in his memory a table of the first six powers of the "series of natural numbers up to 100."

It is related that on one occasion two of Euler's students attempted to calculate a converging series. As they advanced they found they disagreed in the result by a unit in the fifteenth figure. The question was referred to Euler, who decided to make the calculation. He did this mentally, and his result was found to be correct.—New York Tribune.

The Codmoppe.

Sterrings are still eaten as much as in the days when Yarmouth had to send a hundred yearly to the king, baked in four and twenty pasties. But where is the codmoppe gone, and what was it like when kings dined off it in Lent? "Codmoppe sauce Hollandaise" would sound most intriguing on a Savoy menu. More original still would be the "roasted perpes" of a Henry V. banquet, which was the "sea swine" of the unrefined Saxon, the "porco marino" of the mediaeval ecclesiast. A maister coke gives an early receipt for "poddying of porpesse," another teaches how to "saute porpesse, and seale," another how to "undertraunce that porpus." From which it may be seen that enterprise extended also to the spelling of the porpoise.—London Chronicle.

A Message from a Famous Beauty Specialist to Women Lacking in Energy and Vitality.

Thousands of women vainly attempt to improve their complexions and to remove blackheads, crows' feet and other blemishes, through the use of cosmetics. This treatment fails because the trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They are suffering from impure and impoverished blood. This condition is in many cases due to a catarrhal condition of the whole system which finds its expression in sallow, muddy complexion, dark-circled eyes, general weakness of the system, and perhaps most plainly in the weeping of mucous membranes that is commonly called catarrh.

In fact this whole tendency is, properly speaking, Catarrh. Banish this catarrh, and the complexion will clear as if by magic, eyes will brighten, faces become rosy and shoulders erect. Perfect beauty goes only with perfect health and perfect health for women can only be obtained through one certain treatment—that which will cure catarrh.

Mme. Swift, New York, the famous beauty specialist known throughout the world and an accepted authority on all relating thereto, states that the one positive and permanent relief for catarrh is Rexall Mucu-Tone. Here is her letter:

"I can strongly endorse the claims made for Rexall Mucu-Tone as a cure for systematic catarrh. Its tonic effects are remarkable. It builds up the strength and restores vitality. If women who are tired and rundown, lacking in energy and vitality, will use Rexall Mucu-Tone, they will praise as I do its strengthening and healing qualities."

Rexall Mucu-Tone works through the blood, acting thus upon the mucous cells—the congestion and inflammation of which causes local catarrh. This remedy causes poison to be expelled from the system, and the blood is purified and revitalized. Thus the natural functions of the mucous cells are restored, and the membranes are cleansed and made strong. We know that Rexall Mucu-Tone does relieve catarrh. We positively guarantee to refund the money paid us for this remedy in every case where the user is dissatisfied. It is a purifier, a vigorous health and a creator of good complexions. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Mail orders filled. It may be obtained only at our store. The Rexall Store, Carroll's Drug Store.

OLD CADIZ.

Once Richer Than London, its Chief Business Now is Salt.

Of Cadiz, De Amicis said, "It is best described by writing the word 'white' with a white pencil on blue paper."

Under the noonday sun, seen from the lofty Torre de Vigia, the mediæval watchtower in the center of the city, its buildings are dazzling and almost encircled by the blue sea. A long, narrow isthmus like the stem of a pipe leads from San Fernando, on the mainland. Cadiz rests on the bowl of the pipe—yes, a pure white meerschaum without coloring, though 3,000 years old.

Americans may justly regard this now decadent place with compassion, because it grew to greatness by its commerce with the new world—while Spain ruled the Americas—and then fell away into decay on the loss of the western possessions.

It was great before Rome was founded. And as late as 1770 it was wealthier than London. Commerce has ever been its life. Today its chief business is the production of salt for export. This humble staple, evaporated in countless shallow lagoons in wide spreading marshes, still keeps Cadiz in touch with the new world, as most of the salt is shipped to South America.

The natives pronounce Cadiz with "z" silent and "a" very broad—"Ca-di." That has always been its name, with slight variations. Its Phœnician and Tyrian founders called it Gadir, a castle of fastness. The Romans called it Gades. The Arabs had it Kadis.—Detroit News-Tribune.

The Don's Opinion.

Fashion is as inexorable in men's as in women's dress. The undergraduate is perhaps the most telling example of this. It was so even a century ago, when Oxford led the way in adopting the new nankeen trousers that were to supersede tight breeches and top boots. Just about that period a don of Trinity was an undergraduate. He was the splendor of the new fashion. "Young man," said the don severely, "you will come to no good. You wear nankeen trousers and keep a dog." The young man afterward became Dr. Sumner and bishop of Winchester. London Chronicle.

FORMAL DOINGS WITH NO HOPE

So-Called Democratic Campaign in This State is a Smile-Provoking Performance

SAME OLD INCONSISTENCIES

Penrose Day in Philadelphia Occasion For Wonderful Demonstrations. Both Labor and Capital Appreciative of Senator's Efforts in Their Behalf.

That what effort is being put forth in the present State campaign in the interest of the Democratic ticket is a mere formality without the backing of even the faintest hope for political success, was clearly demonstrated in the "opening rally" held at Pottsville, Pa., last night. During the word "Democratic" as much as possible, the meeting was termed an "Independent Republican Rally" with William H. Berry, a former State Treasurer, who managed somehow to be elected on the Democratic ticket, and Henry G. Niles, of York, one of those who bewail continually, as the stellar attractions. Mr. Niles, who once claimed to be a Republican, later on posed as a Lincolnite and then classified himself as an Independent Republican, spoke in behalf of the "entire Democratic ticket." Mr. Berry, by a peculiar self-contradiction, denounced what he had gone there to encourage—a bi-partisan movement—and appeared at his best when he cast a well-deserved slur upon chameleon politicians such as those who were his associate speakers on that occasion.

Mr. Berry's address was peculiarly humorous. He said in part: "It augurs well for the future of Pennsylvania politics that representatives of opposing political parties are found on the same platform urging the election of the same candidates for State offices." And then a moment later he said: "The practical certainty of Republican success has caused an unscrupulous horde of office and spoils seekers of every, but mostly of no political faith whatever, to gravitate to it, and of this material the Republican organization or machine is largely formed."

Thus it became apparent to those assembled that citizens with mixed opinions "sugared" for the future of Pennsylvania. If they look to the Democratic ticket, but in by honest conviction they look to the Republican ticket, they become part and parcel of an "unscrupulous horde of every but mostly no political faith whatever." And thus the time-honored and fundamental Democratic principle of inconsistency was again brought clearly to the front.

Meanwhile the Republican State candidates, Former State Senator J. A. Stober, of Lancaster, for State Treasurer, and State Senator A. E. Sisson, of Erie, for Auditor General, are receiving enthusiastic welcomes at every stop in their tour of the State, while the becoming and dignified attitude of Judge Robert von Moschizker, the eminent Philadelphia jurist, who is a candidate for the Supreme bench, in refraining from the tactics employed by Munson, his opponent, has earned the respect of all decent voters.

Employees and employers paid wonderful tribute to Senator Penrose and members of the Republican State committee in Philadelphia on Saturday, October 16. It was known as "Penrose Day" and from 8:45 o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon Senator Penrose and his party were kept busy meeting the workmen in the plants of Ivins, Deitz & Magee, Brown, Aberle & Co., Brown Knitting company, the Philadelphia Tapestry mills, the Moss Rose Manufacturing company, Folwell Brothers, Stead & Miller, Joseph Bromley and the Thomas Wolstenholme & Sons company. These are among the largest manufacturing concerns in and about Philadelphia and the spectacle of thousands of workmen giving up their half holiday to meet and greet the great Republican leader and his State associates, was an eloquent endorsement of Republican policies by American labor. The big day receptions were held under the auspices of the Workmen's Protective Tariff League. In the evening of that day Senator Penrose and the Republican State leaders were tendered a banquet by the principal manufacturers of Philadelphia, this event rounding out a day in which capital and labor gave appreciative expression to the satisfaction they find in the equal protection and rights guaranteed under the Republican banner.

The time for the reconvening of Congress is close at hand and Republicans throughout this Commonwealth have been quick to recognize the necessity of giving to the State ticket that is to be voted next month a support that shall constitute a moral support to the Republicans in Congress who stood steadfast through all the tariff discussion, and thereby insure the speedy carrying out of President Taft's further legislative program. The fact that gubernatorial and congressional elections are to soon follow in this State lends further importance to this ordinarily off-peak campaign.

The Republicans of the Keystone State owe it to their party, not only in the State but in the Nation as well, that a large vote be cast next month. In the framing of the new tariff act Pennsylvania's interests were well cared for and so were the interests of those who work in those industries. The casting of a large Republican vote next month will be in the nature of a vote of confidence and appreciation and will have a material effect in sustaining the revival of prosperity already here and which is certain to attain a flood tide proportion within the next two years if the people sustain the party leaders who are at the helm.

Making a Touchdown.

Life is nothing more or less than a big football game. The more we can buck the line and undergo the punishment of the game the more it will help us in making a successful touchdown. In a real football game there is one man who seldom has a chance to make a touchdown. It's the center. In life every man has a chance to make a touchdown.—Rev. David B. Matthews, Episcopalian, Brockton, Mass.

God as Man's Great Help.

Man's ship is useful only when it is filled and swept forward by God's trade winds; man's engine serves only when it is driven by God's lightnings; man's wheels turn around only when they are pounded upon by the river's current; man's intellect needs the impact of God's truth; man, in order to do good work, must see the heavens open and Christ standing by the throne of God. This vision of the eternal God who can carry on his work makes the toiler equal to any task.—Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, Congregationalist, Brooklyn.

Most Fruitful Hours.

The pleasantest hours are not always the most profitable, and it is true indeed what is said in the Ninetieth Psalm—that our life's strength is labor and sorrow. There are many of the pleasantest hours which we might just as well forget, and there are many among the dark hours which have left behind a lasting blessing. The most fruitful and valuable hours, those which give most impetus to the inner life, are, as a rule, not the pleasant hours of enjoyment and mirth, but the grave and serious hours, days of woe and nights of tears, times of struggle and privation, the memory of which one would not part with for any price.—Rev. Ernest A. Tappert, Lutheran, New York.

Doing Good.

Society is like the planetary system, which is composed of greater and lesser bodies, held together by reciprocal forces. The moon is the smallest body of our system, and yet what control she sways in the flow and ebb of the ocean tides! How much we would miss her monthly visits, when she sheds over the earth her pale and silvery light. She generously shares with us the fulgence she borrows from the great orb of day. And so, no matter how insignificant you may be, you can exert some beneficent power over the tide and flow of human passions and diffuse a calm and blessed light on those that fall within your environment.—Cardinal James Gibbons, Roman Catholic, Baltimore.

Look Up.

The man who always looks down cannot aspire. There is a purpose in our noble aspirations. The untrained beckons us onward. To look up means to lift up. "Tis not what man does which exalts him," says Browning, "but what man would do." Our standard will rise higher and higher as we go from strength to strength. Our longings foretell our destiny. We must look down at times to get a clear idea of life's details, but if we wish to see their proper relation to the great issues of life we must look up. If we simply look at our feet, how limited becomes our vision! By lifting up our eyes on high we see the vast arch that spans the heavens. It is then we see with Emerson "what majestic beauties daily wrap us in their bosom," or with Ruskin study "the mystery of distant mountain blue," hear with Tennyson the sea waves break upon "the cold gray stones" or stand entranced with Newton until the stars rise.—Rev. J. W. Roberts, Congregationalist, New York.

Eskimo Graves of Stones.

To the Eskimo mind everything animate or inanimate possesses a soul. Thus in their graves we found they invariably placed every cherished possession, that their spirits might serve the departed spirit in the same capacities in the life to come. There is little room for burial beneath the scanty earth in Labrador, even if the frost would permit. So the grave consists of upright stones, with long flat ones laid across. These not only serve to keep the wolves from the body, but wide chinks also afford the spirits free passage in and out.—Wilfred T. Grenfell in Century.

Uncle Sam's Human Hinges.

In other cities the doors of public buildings are set on springs and slap to and fro as the visitor wills, but in Washington it appears necessary to have a special man to open and close the doors—human hinges, as it were—no undignified banging of doors there. This custom has died out in other places, but there are many veteran negroes in Washington who have seen years of such service for the government. They have a stately way of performing this office, which gives a door an official and unofficial swing.—Joe Mitchell-Chapple in National Magazine.

Shrewd Girl.

Ella—Bella is an economical girl. Stella—There is no doubt about that. She is engaged to a clergyman, and he says that she asked him if he could perform the marriage ceremony and save the wedding fee.—New York Press.
